'Haverhill needs better night-time 999 service'

RESIDENTS needing an ambulance during the night could be left waiting as there is now just one emergency vehicle covering the town between 1-7am.

Previously, Haverhill also had an emergency rapid response vehicle, but this service was cut last April.

Now, the town's ambulance is often redeployed to "busier" areas where there may be more patients in need of it.

Town councillor Maureen Bryne said she is concerned – especially as the withdrawal of the rapid response vehicle coincided with the closure of the Crown Walk In Centre, on Withersfield Road.

The town's nearest out-of-hours base is at West Suffolk Hospital, in Bury St Edmunds.

Haverhill also has an active Community First Responder Team – but Cllr Bryne says this does not compensate for the reduction in the 999 service.

She said: "To ensure that the town has the ambulance cover it deserves, the rapid response provision should be reinstated to provide 24-hour cover and when the Haverhill ambulance is not on a call it is returned to Haverhill."

A spokesman for the East of England Ambulance Service confirmed that the rapid response vehicle had been withdrawn, but said the situation is under constant review to assess patient need.

He said: "Our resources are deployed across the region according to the demands of patients."

"These are under constant review to ensure that we can get the right care to those who need it most."

Cllr Byrne, deputy mayor of Haverhill, experienced the service in December when her husband James became seriously ill with a complete heart blockage.

The couple had a doctor at their home, who dialled 999.

Cllr Byrne said: "My husband had a life-threatening condition, and had to wait more than an hour for an ambulance to arrive."

"I was told it was likely that somebody else needed an ambulance and that they didn't have a doctor with them."

Mr Byrne was taken to West Suffolk Hospital before being transferred to Papworth.

He has since been fitted with a pacemaker.

According to ambulance records, a call was received at 7.01pm and an ambulance arrived at 7.35pm. The incident happened on December 10.

"It was a very frightening experience," Cllr Byrne added.

"The doctor rang 999 and advised it was life threatening."

"Thirty minutes after making a 999 call, they had to make a second call and was told the ambulance had not left to arrive at my home. It arrived some 25 minutes later."

The spokesman confirmed that the ambulance took 34 minutes to arrive because the local ambulance was dealing with other patients. The nearest available one was sent.

He said: "Recruiting additional staff has been identified as the immediate priority for the Trust and this will be achieved through recruiting student paramedics, graduate paramedics and qualified paramedics and technicians."

"Putting more staff, particularly paramedics, on ambulances will over time improve responses and care to patients."

Gardeners' markets could return to town

IN BLOOM: Some of the team's work around the town.

POPULAR markets held to raise money for Haverhill in Bloom could be making a comeback. Gardeners' Markets used to be held twice yearly on the recreation ground – until the task became too much for the small committee to manage alone. Now, with the input of willing volunteers, it is hoped that the events will return. The volunteers will be needed to help with the event organisation, as well as running some of the events on the day.

Countdown is on to Vision 2031 inquiry

AFTER months of dispute and discussion, the public's worries about Vision 2031 are going to be addressed.

Dozens of complaints about the future plans for Haverhill were submitted by residents, councillors and businesses across the town – but with the public inquiry date looming, it was decided a discussion must take place.

Representatives from Haverhill Town Council and St Edmundsbury Borough Council met on Monday to highlight the concerns and come to an agreement.

Will Austin, town clerk, said that there were some "encouraging discussions".

"There seems to be a degree of acceptance of our concerns that Vision 2031 doesn't cater for the infrastructure needs of a very fast expanding population in a fast growing town," he said.

"We believe there will be some changes accepted into the document," Haverhill's population is currently between 25,000 and 27,000 and is due to rise by another 10,000 over the next two decades.

Some of the observations raised which may now be written into the document are improvements to the A1307 Haverhill bypass, the re-introduction of a rail link and an educational facility for over 16s.

The possibility of creating a history or heritage centre and improving vehicular access to the town centre may also be included.

Mr Austin, who attended the meeting with Cllr Roger André, town mayor, said: "The town council recognises the need to have this document, and we won't be standing in the way of that."

"We will argue strongly for as many changes to be accepted as possible and we are pleased with the response of the borough council officers."

Mr Austin added that the town council is hopeful its desire for a country park in Haverhill will also be recognised and accepted into the plan.

Roger Clews, the inspector chosen by the Secretary of State, needs to decide whether the document is "legally compliant and sound (fit for purpose)".

Any objections made by the public that Mr Clews feels are relevant will be addressed in hearing sessions.

His findings must then be reported back to the borough councils, and any modifications he suggests will be consulted on.

Vision 2031 needs to be adopted as policy by full council once complete.

Application for 200 homes on business park site

MUCH-needed affordable housing could be built on industrial land.

Outline planning permission is being sought for up to 200 homes, from one bedroom to four, to be built on the Haverhill Business Park site.

The land was earmarked for industrial use, but owners Carisbrooke Suon Developments confirmed there has been no interest since 2007.

Haverhill Town Council offered its support to the plans at a meeting on Tuesday.

Cllr Roger André, town mayor, said:

"With the potential to deliver up to 200 homes within the next 18 months, this proposal will contribute to meeting our community needs for appropriate housing with opportunities for those affected by the bedroom tax to free up much needed larger homes."

"The developer has an impressive track record in delivering such projects in Haverhill."

Nic Rumsey, owner of Carisbrooke, said: "These proposals would deliver further investment in the town whilst creating valuable jobs in the construction of the much-needed new homes.

"In addition to the town council's support, feedback already received on the proposals is also encouraging, with immediate neighbours and the chamber of commerce both recognising the merits of the scheme."

Around 30 per cent of the new properties – around 60 homes – will be in the affordable housing bracket.

Outline permission will need to be granted by St Edmundsbury Borough Council.

A final decision is expected in March.

Girl's phone stolen

A TEENAGER has had her smartphone stolen as she walked along the old railway line in Haverhill.

The victim, aged 14, was walking with her 15-year-old friend on the footpath behind Tesco on January 2.

Two men, both thought to be around 18, walked past and brushed alongside her between 3.05pm and 3.15pm.

The 14-year-old later noticed that her smartphone, a black Nokia Lumia, was missing.

The phone is worth around £200.

The men are both described as around 6ft tall and wearing black hoodies with hoods up.

One also wore a red jumper and had curly black hair.

Anyone with information can call Haverhill Police on 101.

You can also contact Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Trees wanted . . . dead or alive

KEEPERS at Linton Zoo are appealing for unwanted Christmas trees – dead or alive – for use as decorations and play things for the animals.

A spokesman said: "Greenery is very important to our animals, so live rooted and growing trees can be given a second chance at life by being planted in one of our animal enclosures."

"Once the cut trees have dried out they are used as fuel for our Bio-burner, this provides additional heating and hot water to help run our zoo at this very expensive, cold time of year."

Trees without roots can be used to decorate the zoo's aviaries and also given to lions, tigers and snow leopards.

Those taking down their Christmas decorations early have contributed to the appeal at Linton Zoo already – but there's still time for you to donate too.

Trees can be left at the front gate, or on the drive if the zoo is closed.

Call 01223 891308 or visit lintonzoo.com for more information.

Companies collect donations of food

STAFF and customers have pulled together a massive donation.

The team at 1st Stop Recruitment, Haverhill's longest service recruitment agency, donated bags full of food to the town's foodbank, as well rounding up fellow businesses to do the same.

Lesley Whiting, Director of 1st Stop Recruitment, said: "It is thanks to charities like Haverhill Foodbank and REACH that things will be made a little easier and brighter for people suffering in our town."

"Along with our generous customers, we wanted to do our bit to support people less fortunate."

In 2012, 1st Stop Recruitment collected 152kg for the foodbank, which was launched in 2008.

Ann Merrigan, foodbank manager, said: "We have been amazed by the amount of donations received from the community and local businesses. There is an overwhelming sense of community spirit in Haverhill."

Get ready for a new taste . . .

AN AMERICAN diner could be inviting hungry punters through the door by the end of January.

Plans to open the new eatery on Haverhill High Street were formerly approved by St Edmundsbury Borough Council shortly before Christmas and owner Sam Clark has already got everything in motion.

The diner, named Route 66, is expected to be in business by the end of the month with an official opening scheduled for February.

Mr Clark said: "I have had a really good response from people which I am pleased about – I have not heard anything negative about the plans."

"There are not many places to sit down and eat in the High Street so I'm pleased it's finally going ahead."

DEBRA FOX

Route 66 will provide diners with a taste of America – and a dash of 50s rock'n'roll.

The black and white checkered floor has been put in and places for around 70 diners visitors have been set.

A provisional menu packed full of diner favourites has also been drawn up, ready for opening night.

Home made burgers, grills and mexican dishes are on the menu, with a range of starters, sharers and sides.

There will also be a kids menu – as well as a facility to make your own ice cream sundaes.

Mr Clark, who previously owned Cafe Zafferano in Saffron Walden, said: "I'm feeling really positive about the plans – it's just getting it all sorted now."

Entertainment for the official opening – is already in the pipeline too with classic cars, motorbikes and an Elvis impersonator on the cards.

Mr Clark is still looking for waiting staff – with one full time and other part time roles available.

Work starts on new hospice care centre

REFURBISHMENT work has officially begun on a new hospice centre.

The Burton Centre, on Camps Road, Haverhill, is being transformed into the newest base for St Nicholas Hospice Care. On Tuesday, the builders moved in and got started. Work is expected to be finished by April this year.

The opening of the centre means patients and their families will no longer have to travel to the main hospice site, in Bury St Edmunds.

A number of facilities will be closer to home for many.

Mandy Wilson will be the outreach centre manager, and thinks that the new premises are going to make a real difference.

She said: "The centre is going to be something that the people of Haverhill are going to make their own – and have the spotlight on them for once.

"It's just going to make things so much easier for people suffering from life-shortening illnesses to have this in the heart of the community."

The outreach centre, which will have treatment and therapy rooms, activities spaces, offices, meeting rooms and a new wheelchair lift to improve access, will provide all of the facilities that the main centre can – apart from having a ward.

Mrs Wilson added: "This will be the first outreach centre for Suffolk."

Volunteers are still needed to run the reception area, and help with the cafe.

If you're interested please call 01284 766418 for more information.

Hancock welcomes extra school places

WEST Suffolk's MP is delighted that the county will receive more school places.

The Government has announced that £2.35 billion will go towards creating these spaces.

This, combined with money already being spent, means that Suffolk is set to get more than £13 million.

The county council has a three year allocation of funding, and so will be planning ahead to ensure every child has a school place.

Matthew Hancock said: "Suffolk's MPs work together and are always making the case for more funding for the county."

"It is great news for young people in West Suffolk that this Government has found billions of extra funding to ensure every child has a place at school so that they can fulfil their potential."

"This is part of the long-term plan to create an education system that gives young people who want to work hard the skills they need to get on in life and have a better, more secure future."

Michael Gove, education secretary, said the funding has more than doubled.

Clown Sidney spreads the love

A KNITTED clown has raised more than £150 for a teenager with leukemia.

Sidney Slapstick has been raffled off through The Craft Basket, in Queens Street, Haverhill, with all proceeds going to a child in need.

Sue Vallis, owner of The Craft Basket, has been searching for a worthy winner to take home the prize money.

After contacting REACH

Community Projects, they were put in touch with the Twitchetts, of Haverhill.

Daughter Niomi, 14, has leukemia.

More than 120 tickets were bought in a bid to win Sidney, and the family received £159.

Mrs Vallis said: This was an all round feel-good thing – it was lovely.

Sidney was knitted by Anne Jones, also of Haverhill, who wanted to do a good turn this Christmas.

"Anne buys all of her knitting wool from us and she's knitting for charity all the time," Mrs Vallis added.

"She's a very kind lady, and wanted to make a difference to a local child this Christmas."

Niomi's dad Tom and brother Drey visited The Craft Basket to meet Anne and collect the money.

Controversial wind turbine plan deferred

THE decision to build a 78m high wind turbine at Nosterfield End, just outside Haverhill, has been deferred.

At a meeting held on January 2, councillors were set to deny planning permission for the application, which was recommended for approval by inspectors.

But members of St Edmundsbury Borough Council's Development Control Committee had to defer the application instead after they were unable to block it completely.

A spokesman for the borough confirmed that officers need to research the implications of the council saying no before presenting them to the committee at a later date.

The application is "minded to refuse", with seven members voting in favour of refusal and four voting against.

The plan, first submitted by applicant James Sills in February last year, has been the cause of much discussion by councillors and residents alike.

Throughout the process, concerns have been raised about the visual impact on the surrounding land, noise and the effect on nearby historical buildings.

Will Austin, town clerk, spoke out about these worries on behalf of the town council at the meeting.

He said: "The argument that the environmental and economic benefits outweigh these concerns did not stand up to scrutiny at the committee meeting, and had it not been for a legal technicality, the proposals would have been thrown out there and then."

"As it is we have to wait until February for confirmation, although we would encourage the applicant to acknowledge the clear will of the committee and the local community by withdrawing the application immediately."

In earlier talks with the town council, Mr Sills said that £15,000 could be passed back to the community every year for the working life of the turbine – but councillors said the money "would not substitute for the blight on Haverhill's view".

The option of community funds being generated by the turbine was not included in the original planning document, Mr Sills said, because it "was not material to the planning process".

Mr Sills has previously been granted planning permission for a wind turbine at Clare.

If the Nosterfield End application is refused, Mr Sills will have the right to appeal.

In a letter to Cllr John Griffiths, Matthew Hancock, West Suffolk MP, said he hopes the application is "rejected outright" when looked at again.

He said: "I am deeply concerned that if the application is not rejected it will result in an inappropriate turbine in an area without sufficient wind which will damage an otherwise beautiful natural environment."

The next meeting is on February 6, but it has not been confirmed whether the further information will be presented then.

Thank you for your help and support

St Nicholas Hospice Care has been well supported by our community again in 2013, so I would like to say a huge thank you to everyone who did anything to help us throughout the year.

Because of the care we provide many people feel inspired to help us fundraise and volunteer. It really is heart-warming to have such ongoing support. It has been a challenging year, with more organisations becoming reliant on public donations and several other local appeals running, but thankfully the support from the community has enabled us to provide care to hundreds of families each day and plan for the future as we enter our 30th year of care in 2014.

The development of our services is growing fast and we are providing more and more support to people in the community. One clear example of this is the development of our first ever outreach centre, The Burton Centre, in Haverhill. We have been able to achieve this thanks to grant funding, and we hope to be operational by Spring 2014.

Our other services are also developing so that we can provide even more care to our community, working as one team to help as many families as we possibly can. We thank everyone sincerely for their generosity and commitment to St Nicholas Hospice Care.

Without your kindness we simply wouldn't be able to help so many families.

PERFORMERS from St Felix Church, Haverhill, and Balsham sang their favourite carols to do their bit for Haverhill Foodbank this Christmas.

The singers raised £500 for the bank through spreading their festive cheer.

Father Michael, of St Felix, said: "Thank you to the store and to all who gave so generously to help our local community.

"We would also like to thank those who joined in the singing."

FUNDRAISING: St Felix and Balsham singers carols at Sainsbury's Haverhill.

Success for town's martial arts group

A MARTIAL arts group is looking forward to welcoming new members after a successful year.

Haverhill Tang Soo Do Jang Korean Martial Arts club meets every Tuesday at the Leiston Community Centre.

Craig Phillips, instructor, hailed the exercise as suitable for adults and children of both sexes.

He said: "Tang Soo Do provides a firm basis for real personal advancement especially confidence, weight loss, fitness and flexibility."

Before Christmas, members took part in a grading in front of the 10th Dan Grand Master, Lee Kang UK.

The pupils worked hard on practicing forms, fighting and self defence and all who went to the grading passed, after inspiring performances.

The 6th Dan Regional Instructor was also there on the day.

If you're interested in attending a session, go to the Leiston Community Centre, on Leiston Road for a 7pm start.

Mr Phillips said: "The first lesson is free - just come along in loose clothing and bring some water."

Still sparkling after 60 years marriage

TOGETHER FOREVER: Joan and Mick with their card from the Queen.

A HAPPY couple have started 2014 with a bang by celebrating their diamond wedding.

Mick and Joan Simkins, Haverhill, married on January 2, 1954, after spending time in love, but apart, while Mick was in the Royal Navy.

They have only spent short periods of their 60-year marriage apart.

Mick, 82, said: "I wanted somebody to write to when I was on ship, and she promised to write to me - and I promised I would bring her back a pair of nylons, which were very hard to come by at the time."

The couple, who have lived in Haverhill for 16 years, have two sons, two grandsons and a great-granddaughter, Thea, aged 2.

The little girl presented her great-grandparents with a special letter from the Queen to commemorate their milestone.

Joan, 81, said: "You get married and it's forever - as long as you're alive."

"We are very good friends, and we love one another - we have our spats now and again, and that's normal. We wouldn't want to be apart."

"It's about give and take - you can't have it all your own way."

The couple enjoy reading, listening to Classic FM and have a dog called George - a terrier cross.

Mick said: "I love the girl - and I have loved her from the beginning. I couldn't do without her - and I wouldn't want to."

Mick and Joan celebrated their anniversary with a party at their home, which was attended by family and friends.

'Buses still not running on time'

DEBRA FOX

PASSENGERS have continued to report poor service from the bus link between Haverhill and Cambridge.

In November, the Weekly News reported that the X13 route often left passengers standing in the cold with buses arriving as much as an hour late.

To combat these problems, which Stagecoach said were partly due to roadworks at Hills Road and Cherry Hinton Road, Cambridge, a timetable change came into force to give drivers extra time to complete the route.

Despite this, Tim Syer who uses the bus every weekday, says he is still waiting for the "unreliable" service to show up.

Mr Syer, of Bartlow Place, Haverhill, commutes from Haverhill to London during the week.

He said: "Stagecoach seem unable to run one regional bus route, either to the published timetable, or operate a service that actually arrives at bus stops."

Mr Syer is epileptic and can't drive so uses the bus to get to Cambridge station.

On December 3, his bus, due to leave central Cambridge at 17.40, did not show up because of delays earlier in the day.

The bus left Cambridge on an earlier duty shortly after 4.15pm – but because of delays in the city centre it did not arrive at Addenbrooke's until almost 40 minutes later.

It got to Haverhill at 17.52 – 51 minutes late – and could not return to Cambridge to carry out the service at 17.40.

Mr Syer has also reported services starting from Addenbrooke's instead of stopping at Drummer Street and the city's train station because of earlier delays.

Andy Campbell, Managing Director for Stagecoach East, confirmed there was an incident where the bus could not return to Cambridge due to lateness.

He added that passengers waiting in Cambridge were taken to Addenbrooke's to link up with the bus when it was forced to start from there instead.

Mr Campbell said: "We are still hopeful that the local authority will reinstate the box junction at the Catholic church and move the first bus stop on Hills Road."

"These changes should improve the reliability of all services using Hills road including the 13."

Inquests opened into deaths of three men

INQUESTS into the deaths of three men who died on the county's roads have been opened and adjourned.

Lee Westrope, 42, of Beaumont Vale, died on the Haverhill bypass when his motorcycle was in a collision with 4x4 towing a horsebox on December 8. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Christopher Waters, of Roman Way, and Peter James, of Brybank Road, both died on December 15 in separate accidents.

Dad-of-one Mr Waters, 26, was walking home from a Christmas party on the A134 at Assington when he was involved in a collision.

Mr James, also 26, died when his car was in collision on Homefield Road.

The inquests were opened and adjourned in Bury St Edmunds on January 3.

NEWS IN BRIEF

New millionaire

SUFFOLK has a new millionaire after a male resident won a Premium Bond prize. The man bought his bond in April 2012 and had holdings worth £30,000. His bond number was selected at random by National Savings and Investments for the £1 million prize in January's jackpot draw. NS&I revealed that there are more than 8,000 prizes waiting to be claimed across Suffolk worth more than £360,000. The oldest of the outstanding prizes was drawn in 1967. It is now worth £25 and the owner had holdings worth £2.

Stopped in their tracks

CRIMINALS using the road network in Suffolk have been targeted by police. An operation on January 3 saw 30 suspicious vehicles stopped. Offences discovered included safety defects and no insurance. Officers from Babergh and Mid Suffolk, roads policing, the dog unit and the Scorpion team patrolled the A14 and surrounding roads.

Check your smoke alarm regularly

RESIDENTS are being encouraged to make regular smoke alarm checks. Suffolk Fire and Rescue Service is reminding people that the alarm's have a lifespan and that the battery needs to be replaced every 10 years. Push the button on the first of every month and check the packaging to ensure it is still in date.

IN BUSINESS: John Porter

AN INSPIRING business leader is coming to Haverhill to share his tips. John Porter is celebrating 30 years of self employment this year, and is planning to share experiences with members of thebestof Haverhill at the next meeting on January 16.

Mr Porter will give guidance on how to embrace being self employed, and how to avoid the pitfalls.

Clock ticking for school applications

TIME is running out to apply for a preferred primary school place for your child.

Parents and carers who need to apply for full-time places have until January 15 to submit their preferences to Suffolk County Council.

Late applications will be considered last and this could mean there are no places left at a nearby school.

Last year, the county council received more than 800 late applications.

Cllr Lisa Chambers, cabinet member for education, skills and young people, reminded parents that Suffolk County Council has a good track record at offering places at preferred schools - but only if they are made aware of preferences during the application process.

She said: "Choosing the right primary school for your child is one of the most important decisions a parent or carer has to make.

"That is why we hope that by now, people will have considered the schools that they would like to apply for places in and visited them.

"If not, please make this a new year priority as time is running out."

Anyone with children born between September 1 2009 and August 31 2010 can apply for up to three schools either online or by using the paper application form.

An application must be made, even if the child already has a place in a nursery class, pre-school or children's centre.

The county council received 7,489 applications stating preferences for September 2013.

Parents or carers who have not yet applied for a school place should apply online or download an application form at www.suffolk.gov.uk/admissionstoschools.

Alternatively you can contact Suffolk County Council on 0845 6000981.

Mum and daughter slim down together

DEBRA FOX

MANY women would use the excuse of pregnancy and cravings to binge on whatever they fancy.

But one inspirational mum has ditched the crisps, chocolate and packet sauces in favour of fruit and fresh ingredients to be the healthiest she's ever been.

Bekki Dore's fifth child is due in May this year – and after hitting her target weight with Slimming World she wasn't going to let her hard work go to waste.

The mum-of-four joined in April 2013 with the aim of losing one and a half stone – and mum Diane Roberts by her side for her support.

Bekki, 29, lost the weight after only 24 weeks, clocking in at 10st 9.5lbs – but her hard work was tainted with some heartbreaking news.

She said: "I miscarried a pregnancy – and then I hit target at about the same time."

"I could have easily given up – but I didn't. I kept my focus and fell pregnant again straight away."

The mum has always cooked meals for her children and husband Lee, 23, but now everything is being made from scratch.

She is also making the conscious effort to eat three meals a day instead of snacking continuously.

Bekki has gained only 8lbs so far – and she is expecting the new arrival, a boy, to be a big baby.

BEFORE: Bekki, left, and Diane, above

The 29-year-old, of Kingfisher Close, Haverhill, has three sons, Elliott, 9, Harrie, 4 and Jase 3, as well as a 16-month-old daughter named Elsie.

Elsie was born four weeks early, and still weighed 7lbs 8.5oz.

Bekki said: "My target would be to get down to a size 10 after the baby, so hopefully that will be my next step."

"Before having children I was nine and a half stone – but I know I'm a different shape now."

Glamorous grandma Diane, 52, got to her target on New Year's Day – going down from 11st 9lbs to a perfect 10st.

Previously working as a Slimming World consultant herself, Diane, of Kedington, was at a "comfortable" weight before joining up, but wanted to support her daughter.

She said: "She is a wonderful daughter and I am proud of where she is now. Doing this together we were boosting one another."

Slimming World works alongside the Royal College of Midwives to provide an appropriate programme for pregnant and breast-feeding women.

Both Bekki and Diane attend Haverhill Slimming World groups held at The New Croft, Chalkstone Way, on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

Contact Tania Watson for Wednesdays on 07974 565229 or Mel Laing for Tuesdays on 07818 275743.

HARD WORK: The leaders, pictured with the commissioners.

Leaders honoured for their work

DEDICATED scout leaders have been rewarded for their hard work and dedication to their troops.

Jenny Mullan, Suffolk's county commissioner, and Graham Smith, Sudbury district commissioner visited Scout and Guide HQ on Colne Valley Road, Haverhill, to hand out accolades to the "extraordinary leaders".

Ray Reed, 2nd Haverhill Sea Scout leader, Sharon Eames, Kedington Cub Scout leader, Kay

Morgan, 1st Haverhill Scout assistant leader, Dave Miller, 1st Haverhill Scout leader and Walter May, 1st Haverhill Scout assistant leader all received top recognitions.

Ms Mullan said: "Going around Suffolk and seeing all the different scouts groups and their leaders I get to see how you are all extraordinary people who really do make a difference to the lives of these young people."

Discussion on town's schools

EDUCATION plans will be more closely monitored as a result of new communications between town and county councils.

Cllr Roger André, town mayor, joined other members of Haverhill Town Council in a meeting with Cllr Lisa Chambers, cabinet member for education, skills and young people.

The session was set up to ease worries on the number of school places available for youngsters in the area after plans were submitted for temporary buildings at Place Farm Primary Academy and Clements School.

Cllr Julian Flood, for Haverhill and Cangle Ward, said: "The meeting was very useful with the mayor and town clerk forcefully putting the case that Suffolk County Council's figures were not as accurate as those gathered locally.

"Now that contact has been made, the town will be kept better informed about education matters by Suffolk County Council so that plans affecting our town can be monitored more closely by the town council.

"I was particularly pleased to see the cross party co-operation in the Haverhill group, with UKIP, Labour and Conservative members all fighting for the needs of the town. Haverhill first, party politics second, as it should be."

A spokesman for Suffolk County Council said: "We had a very useful discussion with the Haverhill Town Council last month and are pleased to have received a note saying that councillors are reassured that school place provision is being reviewed and the expansion of Haverhill will be supported.

"More places have been provided at Clements Primary School and last year we met 98% of parental preferences across Suffolk. We will be monitoring the number of applications received in January against our forecasts and if we see any shortage of places we will intervene."

Wednesdays for women are back

SESSIONS for women with preschool children are reopening in Haverhill.

Wednesdays for Women is starting up again after a short break, and will focus on enjoying varied activities and having fun.

There is also a free creche available for children older than six months.

the laughs*Andrew Lawrence

He's been described as a "supreme misfit" by The Telegraph, but we think they meant it nicely. Andrew Lawrence – he's starred on Live At The Apollo and Michael McIntyre's Comedy Roadshow – already has his own Radio 4 series and is now making a serious mark on the world of stand-up. Grafting along since studying at the University of St Andrew's, the funny red-head is practically guaranteed to go stratospheric any day now.

Punt and Dennis

Former Cambridge Footlights Steve Punt (writer and presenter of BBC Radio 4's The Now Show) and Hugh Dennis (Outnumbered, Mock the Week) are visiting the city where their affair with comedy sketches and political satire began. See the double act in action with their current show, Ploughing On Regardless, which takes winter and the fact the "AA are busy advising comedians 'not to tour the country unless it is absolutely essential,'" to great heights.

Sarah Millican

You can't help but know her voice. That high, laughing South Shields burr shot through with self-deprecation and charm. Sarah Millican turned up in 2008 armed with a raft of jokes about her divorce and the ensuing two and a half years she spent back at her mum and dad's... she won the Best Newcomer Award at the Edinburgh Festival Fringe and we haven't been able to escape her since. Not that you'd want to. This time around the 38-year-old will be explaining how to behave on a dirty weekend and how to fit in seamlessly at a posh restaurant. How very educational. Have fun.

Russell Kane

Russell Kane's Twitter bio says: "Dodged the bullies by making jokes," – well, it certainly worked. The 33-year-old perfectly quipped comedian has survived divorce, the bullies and a knack for controversy thanks to his talent for funny.

Great mates with Radio 1's ever-so charming Greg James (the pair have their own BBC3 show, Staying In), and a regular on a myriad of chat and panel shows (most recently, Who Wants to be a Millionaire?), he's bringing his new one-man show, Smallness, to Cambridge.

Miles Jupp

Stroppy, witty, dapper and ticking all the boxes (actor, writer, comedian), Miles Jupp is quite a talented guy. Always one for popping up on Have I Got News For You, The News Quiz and Mock The Week, he's a panel show host on BBC Radioc4, has recently been onstage in Alan Bennett's People at the National Theatre and starred in Rev and The Thick of It. Now you can see him do stand-up. He explains: "It's a man, standing on a stage, facing an audience, talking about some things and ultimately aiming to cover the cost of his white goods."

Footlights Spring Revue 2014: The History of Everything

Spot the future stars of the British comedy scene at the Footlights Spring Revue. Compiled, written and staged by an eight-strong troupe of performers and writers, this year's show is: "a chronological odyssey through the history of the universe, from the Big Bang to the invention of the iPhone and everything in between." You'll be taken on a breakneck tour "through the primordial soup, up the Jurassic coast, down the Fall of the Roman Empire, into the House of the Tudors, and Back to the Future in time for tea." Expect skits, laughs and silliness a-plenty. The ADC Theatre, Tuesday, March 4 – Saturday, March 8. Contact (01223) 300085 / adctheatre.com

Comedy's coming

Russell Brand

The ridiculously intelligent, crazy-haired, skinny-belted lothario is doing a second visit with his Messiah Complex world tour. He'll be investigating whether or not Jesus had a mental disorder that made him believe he was the son of God and was just rather convincing about it all. Hence the Bible and all that jazz. Brand will tackle it with all his usual wit, flair and rampant chat, so if you're easily offended, it's probably not for you. The man/actor/TV cad/fractional politico is a motor-mouthed genius. Or perhaps he just has a mental disorder he's using to comic advantage... either way, it'll be terribly amusing.

Jonathan Creek – no, wait, sorry – Alan Davies, the rambling, mop haired Q panellist, is visiting with his new stand-up show, Little Victories. Best mates with Bill Bailey, the Essex born 47-year-old hasn't been out on the road recently as much as we'd probably like – he's quite busy what with writing books, chatting on with Stephen Fry and fitting in the odd bit of acting work – but he seems to be getting back into it. Expect shrewdness, smartness and oh so many laughs.

Rob Beckett

Rob Beckett's grin is unbelievably impressive. Huge slabs of pristine white enamel, very little gum and a quiff of spiky blonde hair adding to the ensemble. But if you haven't seen too much of him, it's no wonder. Other than a couple of Mock the Week clips, he's only got a few skits floating around on YouTube. The best being one on being working class (the test is if your plasma TV is bigger than your bookcase apparently), and another on all the people he looks like, but isn't (Boris Johnson, Peggy Mitchell and Clare Balding make the list).

BRAND OF COMEDY:
 Above, Russell Brand and right, Alan Davies are coming to Cambridge Corn Exchange this spring

■ Art historian Roger Simpson returns to the Arts Centre with a series of 10 lectures that explore comic art and satire that lie at the heart of Englishness from Wednesday January 15 through to Wednesday April 19 at 2pm.

■ On the cinema front, from the director of The Queen (12A), PHILOMENA (12A) stars Oscar-worthy Judy Dench as the titular character seeking out the illegitimate son taken away from her when he was three whilst she served in one of Ireland's notorious convents. We have showings tomorrow at 7.30pm, our new start time for evening cinema, and Monday January 13 at 1.30pm. THE SELFISH GIANT (15) on Monday at 7.30pm is a pitch-perfect portrayal of working class families in strife. Inspired loosely by Oscar Wilde's work of the same name, it concerns a mouthy 13-year-old Bradford lad who would rather steal and sell scrap metal than go to school. THE BUTLER (12A) starring Forest Whitaker and Oprah Winfrey is showing on Wednesday January 15 and Thursday January 16 at 7.30pm. African-American Cecil Gaines secures a job as a butler at the White House and in the decades that follow, presidents come and go but Cecil and his wife remain. In the hands of director Lee Daniels the grand events of 20th century America are brought down to human scale, from Cecil's childhood in the cotton fields to the Civil Rights movement, the rise of the Black Panthers and the election of the first black president. Finally, GRAVITY 2D (12A) stars George Clooney as wisecracking space veteran Kowalsky and Sandra Bullock as the rookie scientist Stone, who we see in space in a staggering 13-minute opening take. Showing on Friday January 17 at 7.30pm.

■ Events to watch out for include more panto fun with Centre Stage Company's THE PIED PIPER (various dates between Saturday January 25 to Saturday February 1) and The Bolshoi Ballet present JEWELS, inspired by New York's 5th Avenue famous jewellers on Sunday February 2 at 3pm.

DELIVERY MAN
 certificate 12A, 1h44m

WHEN Hollywood remakes a critically acclaimed foreign film, the original director more often than not stands by as their work is re-interpreted – sometimes beyond recognition – by another filmmaker. Occasionally, though, the same creative force takes the helm for both versions. French-Canadian filmmaker Ken Scott charmed critics and audiences with his bittersweet comedy Starbuck. He remains in the director's chair for this brasher remake which transplants the action from Montreal to the mean streets of Manhattan.

In most other respects Delivery Man is the identical twin of its predecessor, repeating scenes virtually word for word in an effort to recreate the winning formula. Vince Vaughn plays David Wozniak, a delivery truck driver for the family meat business run by his Polish immigrant father, Mikolaj (Andrzej Blumenfeld). David is deep in debt and repeatedly lets down his brothers Victor (Simon Delaney) and Aleksy (Bobby Moynihan), as well as his girlfriend Emma (Cobie Smulders) who is expecting their first child.

Out of the blue, David learns that frequent donations to a sperm bank in his student days have resulted in the birth of 533 children. Of those, 142 have launched a class action to force the fertility clinic to reveal the identity of the man they know only as Starbuck.

David turns to lawyer pal Brett (Chris Pratt) to keep the records sealed. However, matters become complicated when he visits some of his children including a busker called Adam (Dave Patten), an aspiring actor Josh (Jack Reynor) and a down on her luck salesgirl called Kristen (Britt Robertson).

Delivery Man is a surprisingly touching second helping that remains true to the heartfelt intentions of the original film.

Vaughn is likeable throughout but there's a lack of on-screen chemistry with Smulders. Pratt is hysterical as a single father stumbling blindly through legal loopholes while Patten, Robertson, Reynor and co deliver spirited performances as youngsters searching for the man who gave them life.

Stumped for ideas?

STUMPERIES may be a throwback to a bygone age, but – perhaps thanks to the current trend for all things retro – they could once again command a place in the British garden, creating a cornucopia of planting opportunities and providing a haven for wildlife.

So says award-winning garden designer Chris Beardshaw anyway, pictured right, who has been scaling the country in search of examples of these Victorian features, similar to rock gardens but created from upturned stumps, logs, roots and pieces of bark, originally designed to display the spoils of intrepid Victorian plant hunters.

In the course of his own travels for BBC2's Great British Garden Revival, Beardshaw visited the home of the first UK stumpery at Biddulph Grange in Staffordshire, as well as the most famous stumpery in the country, that of The Prince of Wales in the grounds of Highgrove House.

"Stumperies were the original vehicles that really excited people about ferns," Beardshaw enthuses. "Their development coincided not only with an amazing array of exotic ferns coming into the UK from around the world but also the realisation of how ferns propagated themselves."

A stumpery is essentially a collection of roots from hardwood trees that have been grubbed out of the ground, originally as a result of land cleared from estates. As informal native woodland was pulled up or repositioned, huge roots were left lying around which could be used as a framework in shady woodland areas. It made use of architectural and dramatic timber which was decaying, interplanted with ferns and other shade-loving plants and bulbs.

So, if you're feeling inspired, how do you create a stumpery in your own garden?

You'll need to plant them in shade, Beardshaw advises, either under a hedge or under a tree, or in the shade of a building.

"You are replicating the forest floor. Before we became too polite and tidy, a woodland would have been a complex mix of young plants, mature plants and a lot of rotting material and it's this rotting underlayer that we are really exploiting.

"Think of a stumpery as a marriage between the more formal parts of the garden and the wilder areas or the wilder landscape that surrounds it. It's that wonderful union of the two. Piling logs or stumps or branches is very good for hedgehogs and beneficial for insects and reptiles.

"Today you can be as adventurous as you wish," adds Beardshaw. "You can use one stump or hundreds of stumps. The rotting timber replicates the native woodland – rich in organic matter, with moisture-retentive soils and the stumps create lots of cracks and crevices in which ferns can excel."

Hardwoods such as oak, sweet chestnut and beech are the best to use because they take longer to rot, although Beardshaw has used conifers for stumperies.

"Stumperies can be really surreal places and are great when associated with ponds and water gardens, underplanted with hostas and astilbes as well as carnivorous plants."

To make a stumpery look natural, you need to bury two-thirds of it in the ground.

"The root plate should be lying on its side so that the trunk of the tree is also on its side and in doing that you are really replicating a windblown tree, where the plate is standing vertically rather than horizontally across the ground.

"That means that you can create little crevices and divots around the plants and it's into those little spaces that you can plant.

"Use ferns as the mainstay and then you can interplant with many winter bulbs such as winter aconites, snowdrops and species daffodils and scilla.

"Then you can include typical woodland dwellers like epimediums, uvaria and hostas.

It's about creating a framework. A stumpery isn't just for spring or summer months, it's great for having that continuation of bulbs flowering before the tree canopy opens up, so early spring bulbs are very rich."

In-car FM radio gets reprieve (thank goodness!)

THE Government has delayed switching off FM transmitters in favour of digital radio.

The move comes as the Government admits more needs to be done to convince radio users to switch to DAB digital radio instead of sticking with FM.

Ed Vaizey, the Communications Minister, said: "We have to support digital radio, but we also respect people's passion for radio and not being made to do something they don't want to."

At present, digital radio accounts for about a third (36.5 per cent) of all radio listening, but take up has been lower among car drivers used to FM. The Government has said that until digital radio listening accounts for more than half of all radio listeners it cannot justify switching off the FM transmitters.

Many car companies now

DAB RADIO: Technical glitches and take-up delays have consigned it to the back burner offer DAB digital radio as standard or an option in its cars and they are working with the Government to reach a workable solution. It's hoped half of all new cars sold in 2014 will be fitted with DAB digital radio. However, millions of older cars do not have digital radio fitted and it's estimated 95 per cent of all cars on UK roads do not have digital access. All cars with a radio can be converted to receive digital stations with the use of an adapter.

TRACKER: A SmartWitness camera makes sense

SmartWitness starts to make a lot of sense as insurance policy

DRAMATIC SmartWitness footage shows the moment three vehicles narrowly avoid a head-on collision due to the reckless overtaking manoeuvre of one driver.

The video illustrates the dangerous driving on our roads every day – and why vehicle cameras are such a vital safeguard for both fleet managers and private motorists.

A white car is caught on camera attempting to overtake a lorry on a quiet country road. The driver fails to spot an oncoming vehicle and a horrific three-way smash is only avoided by the narrowest of margins.

In this case, the driver of the white car did at least pull over after the incident. He could easily have been prosecuted for dangerous driving.

Near misses like this are captured by SmartWitness incident cameras every day. It's why SmartWitness incident cameras are increasingly being used by hauliers and fleet managers to improve safety.

John Cooper Works Mini kickstarts into new year

FOR the influential Detroit Motor Show this month, Mini has stepped up its new product offensive with the unveiling of a new concept.

The John Cooper Works Concept is, in reality, closer to production-ready status than you think. Aimed at showcasing the hot version of the firm's latest generation three-door hatch, itself treated to a global reveal in November, at this stage the focus is on cosmetic changes.

There's no official word on performance yet, so we'll have to make do with what we can see, and the John Cooper Works Concept sports a bespoke front and rear bumper complete with purposeful air intakes at the front. Black grilles fore and aft are decorated with Mini's trademark red flashes, while a sizeable roof spoiler, chunky 18-inch alloy wheels plus centre exit tailpipes complete the look.

You can expect more details, specifically regarding the production car's performance credentials, as Mini makes them available.

JCW CONCEPT: Closer to production than you might think

'Drive like a girl' and you could find your insurance goes down

DRIVE like a girl, a brand set up to beat the Gender Directive, has become one of the UK's leading telematics car insurers since it launched in January 2013. It is selling more than 100 policies a day, with its promise to reward any customer who 'drives like a girl'.

In so doing, it has helped to mitigate the 14 per cent average rise in car insurance costs that has hit the youngest women drivers since the directive came into force almost a year ago. The measure made it illegal to take into account the gender of a motorist when setting rates, even though female drivers are generally safer than males.

Drive like a girl uses data from its telematics box to assess motoring behaviour and gives discounts after three months to any customer who has 'driven like a girl'. So far it has returned a total of more than £1.6 million to 15,000 people – 84 per cent of its customers get some money back. Many customers also stand to earn substantial price reductions on renewal.

"The Gender Directive proved very expensive for the youngest female motorists by forcing them to pay artificially high insurance premiums. Anything that helps to make up for this injustice has to be a good thing, and certainly we have had an enthusiastic welcome for our approach," said Charlotte Halkett of drive like a girl.

Drive like a girl went live last January and is a sister brand to insurethebox, which has pioneered telematics car insurance. Together they have sold almost 280,000 policies.

GCSE and A Level Maths Tutor I am currently in a Gap Year and intend to study Biological Sciences at Oxford from October 2014. I have been tutoring for over two years—predominantly A Levels and GCSE subjects. As a student myself, I feel I can relate well to other students needs and can identify issues quickly and tackle them effectively. Over the past few years, I have developed an extensive knowledge of the requirements for GCSE & A Level examinations and believe good exam technique plays a vital role in exam success. For GCSE and A Level subjects in particular, I focus on improving the students' revision methods and exam technique as well as their academic abilities. I thoroughly enjoy the subjects which I tutor. I believe that everyone learns in a slightly different way and I hope to tailor my tutoring style to the needs of my students. I aim to pass on my enthusiasm of my subjects through my tutoring. Qualifications—A Level: A* A* A GCSEs: 9A* & 1A* email bjwalker5@gmail.com for more information. Rate: £18 an hour Tel: 07779 251530

> Football: Thurlow Nunn League

Rovers stutter in Brightlingsea loss

Haverhill Rovers manager Dean Greygoose was dealt another blow to his forward options after top scorer Andrew Ofosu was taken ill shortly before their match at Brightlingsea Regent.

Rovers were already without his strike partner Dan Cornwell due to injury and subsequently went down 4-1, with Ofosu consigned to the bench as an unused substitute.

Stuart Kingham had briefly given Haverhill hope with a second-half strike after Brightlingsea took a 2-0 lead, but two further goals from the hosts secured the win.

"Both were on a good run of form and both are out at the same time," said Greygoose.

"It's a shame because they were forming a really good partnership. The lads who came in for them played well, but we just didn't look like scoring."

The match was one of only five Thurlow Nunn League, Premier Division matches which went ahead, meaning Rovers stay third in the standings despite the defeat.

But it did allow Brightlingsea to close the gap on the front runners and Greygoose admitted his side were simply not good enough on the day.

"We started well, but never threatened their goalkeeper," he said. "We were 1-0 down at half time and then they scored early in the second half."

"We got it back to 2-1 through Stuart, but we never really looked like we were in the game at all."

"It's a bit frustrating."

Rovers are due to host Newmarket on Saturday and Greygoose is keen for Rovers to rediscover the form which saw them win five in a row before Christmas.

The club have applied for promotion and although he has only been in the job for six months, the manager hopes they will be able to achieve that aim.

However, Greygoose said: "The league is probably the toughest I have known it either as a player or manager."

"Usually there are one or two at the top, but this season there are seven or eight very good teams."

"We're amongst those, but we need to get back to winning games."

In vain: Stuart Kingham got Haverhill Rovers' consolation against Brightlingsea.

On target: Ryan Weaver is Borough's top scorer.

Borough draw Cowling praise after strong start

BEN Cowling believes Haverhill Borough are bettering expectations as they head into the second half of their debut campaign in the First Division.

Borough have quickly adapted to life at this level after winning promotion as Essex and Suffolk Border League runners-up in 2012-13, and are currently just two points off the promotion places.

Manager Cowling is delighted to see his side have proven more than a match for the other sides in the division, especially those with far superior budgets.

"We're probably above expectations in as much as how we have been performing in our first year," he said.

"It's an interesting period."

"A lot of the players have adapted and others have fallen by the wayside."

"We don't pay a penny to our players and we've shown we can compete with teams who are spending thousands of pounds a year."

Goals have been shared around at Borough this season, but last season's top scorer Ryan Weaver again leads the way on eight.

He was part of the squad which reached the FA Vase, third round in 2012-13, and Cowling feels that run served his side well.

"We played several teams from higher divisions and beat them, so that gave us confidence for making the step up to this division," he said.

"We've shown we can compete. Maybe we've been a bit naive, but we are improving. It's just down to experience."

"If we keep our standards up and don't get too many injuries then we should win more than we lose."
